Tatsoi greens

Joi choi

Chop suey greens

Mustard green snow

Canton dwarf

Red choi

These plants have been grown from King's seed in peat-free compost. They can be grown inside or outdoors but will need a larger container soon. If you grow them outdoors, please 'harden them off' for a few days and then nights - or it is a shock to them when it gets cold. And do protect them, with a cover or a door, from cabbage white butterflies, their caterpillars find them delicious too!
